

Time for adventure in Alaska - the “Last Frontier”

Alaska became our 49th State on January 3, 1959. Since then, curiosity, a sense of adventure and a desire to see and experience the “Last Frontier” have led many to visit our largest State in the Union, making it one of our most popular travel destinations. Were you aware that:

- In 1867, then Secretary of State William Seward offered Russia $7.2MM for Alaska. The Russians accepted. The purchase was touted as “Seward’s Folly”. Not the case now.
- Alaska has more coastline than ALL of the other “lower” 49 States, approximately 33,000 miles
- Alaska is the largest State in the U.S. and the least populated.
- Alaska’s state flag was designed by a 13 year old boy & features the Big Dipper & the North Star.
- Dog mushing is the official State Sport in Alaska.
- Alaska is twice the size of Texas.
- Barrow, Alaska boasts the longest night, lasting 67 days.
- Denali, formerly Mt. McKinley, is the highest peak in North America.
- Alaskans take their moose population very seriously. Legislation that is moose-specific states that it is against the law to push a moose from a plane or give a moose a beer.
- Alaska is home to 2 National Forests, over 100 State Parks, 29 volcanoes, 3 million lakes and over 100,000 glaciers.
- Alaska’s State motto is “North to the Future”.

Alaska is incredible wildlife to be viewed in their natural habitat... bears, perched over the water waiting to catch a salmon. Bald eagles soaring against a pristine blue sky or perched on the very top of a tree. Their bald heads can be often seen in the densest of forests. And whales that swim so smoothly and soar so easily that it belies their massive size.

Alaska’s scenery will take your breath away. It is vast and open. It is incredible landscapes. It is forests dotted with lakes and streams and mountains that rise from the dense forest floor and a collection of wildlife that call it home. Adventures abound when you visit Alaska. Zip line over an Alaska forest for a birds-eye view you will not forget or kayak in clear waters under a perfect sky. Be on board and head out to whale watch for a few hours. Enjoy the sea otters, perched on buoys, as they only slightly lift their heads to watch you pass by. A bear sanctuary brings you closer to these magnificent animals and allows you to watch them go about their daily business of living, with other bears to tussle, play and forage with. You can walk on a glacier, ride a dog sled or hop on a sea plane to enjoy the remarkable views. Alaska is a paradise for photographers. There is the “perfect shot” everywhere you look.

Alaska is another world. Come see Alaska, immerse yourself in its many sights, sounds, tastes and adventures. Whether it’s your first visit or you have explored Alaska before and look forward to returning, you will continue to be touched by all that it offers you. It is a peek into a different life and for many of us, a different world. Give yourself the gift of Alaska. Share and enjoy Alaska with your family and friends. You will make wonderful memories together.

2018 is the perfect time to visit this uniquely beautiful and awe-inspiring part of our country. You’ll visit many of the quaint towns of Alaska, such as Juneau, Sitka, Kodiak and Ketchikan among others. You will sail the Inside Passage and visit Hubbard Glacier where the you will feel the glacier’s cold and perhaps be lucky and see some calving. The waters are still, and you will feel the cold. The Glacier is other-worldly and to be there is an experience you will not forget.

6:30am in what was then-covertly termed Sword, Juno, Gold, Omaha and Utah beaches. Nearly 5,000 ships and 9,000 aircrafts participated in the liberation of Normandy. Most of the soldiers were not even twenty years old, lugging eighty pounds of equipment as they jumped off their boats and pushed through the rough surf under a steady blaze of gunfire till they could scale the steep cliffs to take on Hitler’s army.

A trip back to these beaches is both evocative and sobering. The French in the Normandy countryside remain particularly thankful and friendly to Americans, British and Canadians, et al for their sacrifice on foreign soil. Cemeteries honoring the fallen will resonate as the price of freedom is laid clear. In Arromanches, the remains of the Mulberry Harbour that soldiers took shelter behind, remains visible. Museums are dotted throughout the beaches, and include equipment and other artifacts used in the landing.

From what has been dubbed ‘The Longest Day’ on the battlefield, the Allies continued their push into France. Less than a year after D-Day, V-E Day (or Victory in Europe Day) was officially declared on May 8, 1945 and marked the formal acceptance by the Allies of Nazi Germany’s unconditional surrender. It wouldn’t have been possible without the fight that took place in Northern France.

Highest Rated Ships?

AS A MATTER OF FACT, WE ARE. When editors of the renowned Berlitz Travel Guide publish their list of Europe's Top Ten riverships, all ten start with Ama.

Yes. They do.

How did we get there? By saying yes. Yes to onboard luxury. Of course to active, innovating events and excursions. Absolutely to the best in fine wines and gourmet dining with local flair.

And we'll always say YES to you. Do we mean it? Yes, of course we do.
